The Avenue of 444 Flags Remembers - “America Held Hostage”

American flags for as far as the eye can see greet visitors as they enter the Avenue of 444 Flags in Hermitage, Pennsylvania. Originally they were the symbol of “America Held Hostage”. Today the Avenue of 444 Flags remains as silent proclamation that our freedoms must never be taken for granted.

The story began on November 4, 1979, when an angry mob led by university students stormed the gates of the American embassy in Tehran, Iran and took 53 Americans hostage. Americans watched in disbelief as the days on the calendar turned and negotiations with the terrorists failed to secure their release.

As day 100 of the crisis approached Tom Flynn, owner of Hillcrest Memorial Park decided he was tired of seeing the nation’s flag burned by Iranians on the 6 o’clock news. He was determined to do something to help Hermitage and the nation remember our hostages.

With the encouragement of local veteran’s organizations, flag poles donated by Wheatland Tube, help from unemployed steel workers and casket flags donated by families of veterans buried in Hillcrest, on February 11, 1980 an American flag was raised for each of the 100 days of captivity . Thus began the commitment to raise a new flag every day until the hostages were released. Who could have known this would mean 344 additional flags.

After eight American servicemen lost their lives during the ill-fated rescue attempt in Iran on April 25, 1980, citizens from Scranton, Pa. raised funds to build a permanent monument in memory of these brave men and placed it on the Avenue of Flags. The 10 foot monument features an eagle with its wings spread, announcing hope and freedom. At the base is the Eternal Flame, lit by six former hostages when they returned to Hermitage to see the flags and dedicate the memorial on February 14, 1981.

The hostages were released on January 20, 1981 but the Avenue of 444 Flags lives on as a symbol of freedom.

The park is visited by people from all over the world and is open year round, 24 hours a day, admission is free. The flags are lighted at night and the front circle of flags is lowered to half-staff any time the President declares a time of national mourning.

An unforgettable story from the pages of American History.

War on Terror Veterans Memorial

In the center of the Avenue of 444 Flags are 11 steel and glass monuments, 12 feet tall by 4 feet wide, in a circle around a beautiful fountain. The first 2 feet of the towers are stainless steel; above are five glass panels, each 2 feet high by 4 feet wide. Etched in the dark glass are the names of all military personnel who have died in the War on Terror since 1975.

The first panel begins with the names of Col. Paul R Shaffer Jr. and Lt. Col. Jack H Turner who were assassinated in Teheran, Iran on May 21, 1975. Two lines below are the names of the eight servicemen killed on April 25, 1980 trying to rescue the 53 Americans held captive during the Iranian Hostage Crisis. Also named are the 53 service members who died at the Pentagon in the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks.

The second monument begins with Air Force Master Sgt. Evander E Andrews; the first serviceman to die in Afghanistan killed Oct. 10, 2001. Eight lines below are Marine Maj. Jay T Aubin and his helicopter crew, the first servicemen killed in Iraq, on March 21, 2003. New names are added weekly, shortly after confirmation by the Department of Defense.

The War on Terror Veterans Memorial is something that all freedom loving people can be proud of and a testament that those who paid the supreme sacrifice will never be forgotten.

Once pushed to the edge of extinction, bald eagles and ospreys have rebounding populations. Both of these fish-eating raptors nest near Lake Wilhelm. The park is also home to many birds including American woodcock, common snipe, common nighthawk and many species of warblers. In the spring and fall, waterfowl by the thousands stop at the lake for a quick rest and snack. Loon, teal, merganser, goldeneye and bufflehead are some of the noteworthy waterfowl. The winter is a good time to see many woodpeckers, including the pileated woodpecker.

In summer, turtles are abundant in the quiet waters by the Marina. The wetland across Lake Wilhelm Road from the marina entrance has a waterfowl observation station and is a great place to see osprey and beaver.

Bluebird Trail – Once a rare bird due to habitat loss, the red, white and blue eastern bluebird is once again a common sight at Maurice K. Goddard State Park. For over 20 years, volunteers have maintained bluebird nesting boxes in old fields, meadows, farm fields and recreation areas. The white and emerald tree swallow, another cavity nester, also thrives in the boxes.

The best place to see the birds and boxes is in day-use areas along the Multi-use Trail, which traverses the lower portion of Lake Wilhelm, and the Marina and boat launches.
